

FOURTH SERIES 2008-2010

The British Society for Surgery of the Hand is organising the fourth series of Instructional Courses in Hand Surgery. These two-day courses are comprehensive and over a three-year cycle cover the entire spectrum of surgery of the hand and upper limb. There will be two courses each year with Faculty of Intercontinental as well as British and other European speakers.

The Fourth Series

The fourth series will run from January 2008 to June 2010. Participants who complete a sequence of six courses will receive a certificate of attendance from the British Society for Surgery of the Hand. The courses are aimed at Surgeons and Trainees from Britain and other European countries. The official language of the course is English.

Each course will be based on a substantial amount of didactic material covering the core knowledge of the subject and detailed operative techniques. The faculty of each course will include leading figures, who will present authoritative knowledge at an advanced level within their particular area of specialisation. The courses will, over a period of three years, offer comprehensive coverage of the entire syllabus as outlined by FESSH and IFSSH and will also include the latest information and current thinking on each topic. They will prepare candidates for the European Diploma in Hand Surgery, and the Diploma in Hand Surgery run by the BSSH and University of Manchester.
